Course information
Curtin’s Graduate Certificate in Human Resources is an engaging, industry-relevant course for professionals who want to advance their careers in human resources or industrial relations. This course is suited to people with a bachelor degree in a non-related field or for people without a degree who have significant human resources experience.

This course provides a solid foundation in human resource management, industrial relations, employee relations and human resource development.

On successful completion of the graduate certificate, you may choose to progress to the Graduate Diploma and Master in Human Resources.

Industry connections
Maintaining strong links with industry is critical to ensuring that we are serving the needs of our students and the workforce. Curtin Business School has established a network of advisory boards – groups of industry representatives who support the school by providing invaluable business knowledge, and influencing our courses to help ensure that you are industry-ready on graduation.

This course may incorporate guest lectures from human resource professionals, real-life practical assignments and case studies, and industry networking opportunities.

Professional recognition
Curtin’s human resources courses are accredited by the Australian Human Resources Institute (AHRI). AHRI accreditation ensures consistency across human resources qualifications in Australian universities as well as being the mark of a quality human resources degree.
International students studying in Australia on a student visa can only study full-time and there are also specific entry requirements that must be met. Please refer to international.curtin.edu.au or phone +61 8 9266 7331 for further information, as some information contained in this publication may not be applicable to international students.
